

1
2
3
4 REBEKKA LIEN,
5 Plaintiff,
6 v.
7 YANKA INDUSTRIES, INC.,
8 Defendant.

9 Case No. 24-cv-08007-TLT (TSH)
10
11

12
13 DISCOVERY ORDER

14 Re: Dkt. No. 30
15
16

17 Defendant moves for a protective order staying discovery until its motion to dismiss is 18 decided. ECF No. 30. The Court held a hearing this morning and now issues the following order.

19 This is a low stakes motion because not much is happening right now in terms of 20 discovery. Defendant filed this motion the day Plaintiff served her requests for production and 21 interrogatories, and the parties have stipulated to extend Defendant's deadline to serve responses
22 to May 15, 2025, which is after the May 13 hearing on the motion to dismiss. So, Defendant is 23 currently doing some work, namely drafting discovery responses, and defense counsel are 24 presumably discussing with their client what documents and information it may have to help draft
25 the responses. But that's all the Defendant is doing right now.

26 For her part, Plaintiff served a subpoena on Meta, Meta has responded, and Plaintiff and 27 Meta are meeting and conferring about the subpoena. Plaintiff expects that Meta won't produce anything until after Defendant says in its discovery responses that it doesn't have what Plaintiff is looking for. So, while Plaintiff and Meta are meeting and conferring, that effort is in a holding pattern until Defendant serves its discovery responses.

28 Thus, the best way to characterize the current state of affairs is that the parties are in the very early stages of discovery. They haven't gotten to the point of incurring large expenses, and it

1 is entirely possible they won't get to that point before there is a ruling on the pending motion to
2 dismiss, the hearing on which is currently scheduled for 12 days from now. ECF No. 36. It is
3 therefore unclear that there is much discovery to "stay."

4 Defendant's motion to stay discovery is DENIED because there doesn't seem to be a good
5 reason to grant it. A blanket stay of discovery is unnecessary, even if the motion to dismiss will
6 be successful, because the parties aren't doing much. The preliminary work they are doing
7 (drafting discovery responses, meeting and conferring with a non-party) will be useful if the 8 motion to dismiss is denied, and will not be a large wasted expense if it is granted.

9 In keeping with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 1, the Court does not intend for either side
10 to incur significant discovery expenses before there is a ruling on the pending motion to dismiss.
11 If either side thinks it is about to start incurring significant discovery expenses, and the motion to 12 dismiss remains pending, the parties should promptly file a joint discovery letter brief setting forth
13 their views on whether discovery should be stayed at that point. Right now the need for this 14 motion feels hypothetical, but if additional facts arise, the Court's view could change.

15 IT IS SO ORDERED.

16
17 Dated: May 1, 2025

18
19
20 THOMAS S. HIXSON
21 United States Magistrate Judge
22
23
24
25
26
27
28